“ Keith old friend it is a sad day. I began knowing Keith in the late 80s. We dated sisters and became good friends that lasted the rest of his life. No matter where I saw Keith he was one of few people that was always the same and always my friend. Keith was a guy I considered to be in a very small circle that i will use the word friend to describe. The morning after my dad died he made it a point to come visit me at 730 am . I was outside piddling. He just came to check on a old friend without the crowd around. That was Keith. A damn fine man, a damn fine dad , and a damn good friend. See you in heaven one day friend. Talk to dad about those fish we got out of his freezer he came to sandbar and got on our butts for getting without telling him 35 years ago. So long friend, until we meet again.
