She lived with us in Virginia with her babies.
I grew close to Wanda as she was there for PJ wedding, first childbirth, and many other life events.

She was family.

Just know Wanda that now you are resting in 'The House of the Risen Son.

Rest well.

“ The words that I am leaving on this tribute page could never express the heaviness of my heart today.
Wanda was my closest friend, niece (at one season in my life), and my beloved sister in Christ.
Wanda and I shared first names and the town folks always referred to us as 'double trouble.'
Truth be known, Wanda and I both were strong willed and lived life in color.
We enjoyed each other or being in a crowd.
Wanda's greatest passion was her beloved doggies; she considered them her babies.
GOD only knows the astronomical number of sweet pups she has loved and nurtured all of her life in this world.
She had portraits painted of her beloved babies and kept all of their ashes in urns around her home_ just as GOD bottles up all of the tears that we weep.
GOD gifted Wanda with so many talents_
She played the piano by ear and never read music_
We both played but she always said to me that she envied me for being able to read the music.
I admired her for hearing a song, then sitting down and playing it even more eloquently.
There are so many memories that we have shared; all locked away in the depth of my heart.
One thing I would like to add is that Wanda was a beautiful flower and she and I both broke through a lot of dirt to bloom.
GOD showed us our way even though we veered from our chosen path from time to time.
We found our way back to GOD and for this_ I am deeply humbled and grateful.
Wanda has gone ahead of me and she is smiling because she always liked to be first.
I watch and wait for that Shekinah cloud of Glory when Jesus comes again to gather the remnant of HIS elect.
Until then my beloved and beautiful Wanda_
So long, sister.

You are going to entertain us some sweet day while rejoicing together with GOD'S heavenly choir.

Sleep well in Paradise.

It has been my blessing to call you my friend, my niece, and especially my sister in Christ.

I love you unconditionally.
